The first of two Roundtables is organized to collectively refine and reimagine the ongoing work of the forthcoming Routledge publication: Collective Pedagogies for an Anti-Disciplinary Design Education. The event begins with a public forum in the morning, where authors will present their work to DAD teachers and students, followed by an open discussion. In the afternoon, authors will participate in a private working session, collaborating to critique and refine their chapters. This roundtable marks a critical step in the ongoing development of the working draft, set to be published by 2026, reimaged through a series of discussions.
